FIVE GUILTY IN TURNPIKE FRAUD

Steel May Set Record Production Even Though Orders Are Falling Off

NEW YORK (UP) — Steel orders have fallen, principally because of lower auto demand, but it "could well be" that steel production this year still will set a record, A. B. Homer, president of Bethlehem Steel Corp. says.

Steel customers "have been using a great deal of steel" but they have been living off their inventories, according to the executive of the world's second largest steel company.

That situation has "gone to the point where it can't go on much longer," Homer said, noting that Bethlehem's production rate should pick up from the current 85 per cent to between 88 and 90 per cent in August and to the "middle 90's" in the fourth quarter.

He said a record steel production year depends on how the auto industry fares in the fourth quarter when car makers are expected to increase their orders for steel to meet new model demand.

Homer spoke at a press conference Thursday after the company reported record first half sales and net income, record sales in the second quarter but a dip in profits for the latter period. Other steel company reports followed a similar pattern.

Homer took the place of Chairman Eugene G. Grace, who usually presides, but was in Bethlehem, Pa., on doctors' orders. It was the first time Grace had missed a quarterly press conference since 1920.

Grace's absence touched off new rumors that he may retire. He has "overdone things lately and the doctor said he could not attend this meeting," Homer said. "At 80 he is not as spry as he used to be."

Bethlehem's first half net income rose to $103,701,162 or $2 25 a common share from $95,262,014 or $2.07 a share in the first half of 1956. Net billings totaled $1,363,334,801, against $1,269,910,142.

In the June quarter the company's net income eased to $50,273,507, or $1.09 a share from $53,427,655 or $1.16 per share in the March quarter and $50,298,227 or $1.09 a share in the similar 1956 quarter. Sales spurted to $687226813 from $676,107,988 the previous quarter and $670,353,986 in the second quarter of 1956.

Homer said the decline in steel orders has been mainly in autos, which require large amounts of sheet steel. In structurals, and in plates, used in tanker building, "we have all we can do to keep abreast of things," he said.

He said industrywide production this year "could well set a new record" eclipsing the old mark of 117 million tons in 1955, but he added he "wouldn't want to be held to this prediction." Homer also said:

No one knows what the outcome will be in the government's efforts to block the merger of Bethlehem with Youngstown Sheet & Tube

Rostraver Twp. Motorcycle Death Is Accidental

A six-man coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of a Rostraver Twp. man following an inquest held by Westmoreland County Coroner Stephen D. Yoney.

The dead man was Harry Prewitt, 73, of R. D. 3, Belle Vernon, who was struck by a motorcycle operated by Dale Lynn, 22, of R. D. 2, Belle Vernon. The jury exonerated Lynn of criminal negligence in the fatality.

According to testimony at the inquest, Prewitt was attempting to cross Route 51 three miles north of Perryopolis, on April 15, when the motorcycle came over the brow of the hill and struck him. The victim suffered a skull fracture and suffered shock and died the same day.

Lynn and his wife both were riding the motorcycle when the fatal mishap occurred.

Four Orphaned Children Get $100,000 Sum

BOSTON, Mass. (UP)—Four orphaned children were $100,000 richer today.

The youngsters won the money in settlement of a million-dollar federal court suit against United Airlines, resulting from the plane deaths of a former Danvers, Mass. couple.

The suit was brought by John J. McGarr of Beverly, a brother of James E. McGarr Jr., of Towanda, Pa., who was killed with his wife in a 1955 Wyoming plane crash.

McGarr said he brought the suit on behalf of the four children of the victims. They were Kenneth, 19; David 17; Stephen, 13, and Jane 11, all now living at Beverly.

Chamber Explains Its Support of Ban on Parking

The Monessen Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the city's plan for a parking ban on the north side of Donner Ave., from Fourth to Sixth streets on a 90-day trial basis.

"Some persons are under the impression that we favor a complete parking ban on Donner Ave.," George Cieply, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said today. "Actually we have endorsed only the trial ban on the north side."

The new parking regulations will go into effect on Donner Ave. when abandoned street car rails are removed. Workmen have now started on that project.

The Chamber of Commerce has asked all downtown merchants to cooperate in the trial ban by explaining to customers that the new regulation will decrease the traffic congestion on Donner Ave.

Ammunition Ship Is Burning in New York Harbor

NEW YORK (UP)—A U.S. Navy ammunition ship is afire several miles outside of New York harbor, the Navy said today.

The ship was identified as the Mauna Loa, a 5,450 ton vessel. The Navy said the ship, inbound to New York, was carrying 3,500 tons of ammunition. The ship was reported five miles off Ambrose Lightship, which is about three miles outside New York harbor.

The fire is confined to the engine room but there was danger it might spread to the deadly cargo.

The Navy sent two destroyer escorts, four fire-fighting ships, two Coast Guard cutters and a New York City fire department fireboat to the scene.

The Navy said there was a crew of 150 to 200 men aboard the ammunition ship.

The Coast Guard said the blaze was an electrical fire, that it was self-contained and there apparently was no "immediate danger."

The New York City fire department said the vessel was about four miles northeast of the Ambrose Lightship outside New York harbor and about six miles south of Atlantic Beach, Long Island.

The ocean - going fireboat Firefighter was dispatched from her Brooklyn dock with an augmented crew from two engine companies and a hook and ladder company.

Mayor Is Shot By Contractor Over Building

DETROIT (UP)—Mayor James Tierney of suburban Garden City was in critical condition today from wounds inflicted by a disgruntled contractor who fired five shots at him in a dispute over construction of a new police station.

Tierney, 51, was in emergency surgery at Wayne County General Hospital until early today. The bullets from the .22 caliber pistol entered his stomach and abdomen.

Held in the shooting was Lester Ellerhorst, 52, owner of the Gypsum Construction Co. which built the controversial $108,000 building.

City attorney Russell Swarthout, 34, suffered a cut hand while grappling with Ellerhorst. The shooting followed a Thursday night meeting of the City Planning Commission.

Swarthout at a city council meeting Wednesday night had announced plans to sue Ellerhorst's company because he said construction of the police station was not up to specifications.

Swarthout said the building should only have cost $60,000, but the city was charged $108,000.

'Secret Ballot' to Be Used to Pick Judge

A "secret ballot" will be used by the executive committee of the Westmoreland County Democratic Party to determine the party's third Common Pleas Court judge nominee on August 3.

County Chairman Jay W. Kromer, who will conduct the meeting, said today that 126 persons will comprise the executive committee — the chairmen and vice-chairmen in the county's 63 political subdivisions.

Kromer said that six candidates were interviewed earlier by the party's policy-making committee, but he stated that all will probably have to be nominated from the floor again on August 3.

The meeting will be held at 2 p. m. in the Crystal Room of the Penn Albert Hotel in Greensburg. It will not be a "closed" session, but members of the committee will be the first seated.

Kromer said the committee, itself, will decide what procedure to adopt in the event no candidate receives a majority vote on the first ballot. It has been suggested that the candidate with the least number of votes will be dropped in preparation for the second ballot.

Those actively seeking the nomination include David H. Weiss, Monessen; Paul W. Mahady, Latrobe; John K. Best, Jeannette; Joseph M. Loughran, Greensburg; James L. McWherter, Derry; and Vincent E. Williams, Greensburg.

At the primaries, Democratic voters selected Judge Edward Bauer and District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco as the other two nominees.

The Republicans have already picked Robert Rial, Avra Pershing and Willis Topper.

Senators Hold Closed-door Sessions; Talk Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Richard B. Russell said today he will fight against a civil rights bill provision that would permit imprisonment of newsmen for reporting secret sessions of a proposed investigating commission.

The Georgia Democrat denounced the provision in advance of a meeting this morning of his southern bloc on a jury trial amendment.

All Republican senators also were called into a separate closed-door morning meeting on the jury trial issue.

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland had an opportunity to get President Eisenhower's present position on it at a private White House breakfast with the Chief Executive.

'Legal Points'

Knowland and some other GOP congressional leaders conferred late Thursday with two Justice Department officials. Knowland later told a reporter "some legal points" on the civil rights bill were discussed.

But he said the meeting "definitely" didn't mean administration forces might accept a jury trial amendment. Another participant said there were no negotiations at the talks, only discussion of some of the points that might arise.

The Senate, debating the bill for the 16th day today, is scheduled to vote on the jury trial issue next week, probably Tuesday or Wednesday. It then will take up the bill's section that would set up a bipartisan commission to investigate violations of voting rights.

'Gas War' Still On in Monessen; Six Cent Drop

Monessen's "gas war" continued today, providing bargain prices for motorists.

The price of motor gasoline has dropped to 23 9 cents per gallon at almost all of the city's service stations. That is six cents less than a few days ago.

High-test gasoline is also selling for less. The price ranges from 27.9 cents to 31.9 cents per gallon, depending on the grade.

Prior to the six-cent slash in prices, most service stations were showing about a four-cent profit on every gallon of gasoline sold

The major oil distributors have reportedly offered to share some of the expense of the current war. They are supplying gasoline at a retail cost which will still enable the Monessen dealers to make about two cents on a gallon, it was learned.

"I have no idea when it will end," said one city service station proprietor. "We aren't making any money, but we sure have a lot of customers at the moment."

Billy Graham Tries to Help Collection Thief

NEW YORK (UP)—Billy Graham preached a sermon on "love thy neighbor" Thursday night and told how he had tried earlier in the day to practice what he preached.

The 38-year-old evangelist went to court Thursday to offer help to Louis Silvers 46, who was there to post bond on charges he took up a $491 collection for himself at Graham's Yankee Stadium rally Saturday.

"I told that man, 'God loves you, God loves you, God loves you' and he does love that man accused of taking the Lord's money," Graham said before a Madison Square Garden audience of 16,800.

He later told the United Press that he "felt it only right to go see this man whose life has been affected through our crusade, even though in a tragic manner; I promised we would do what we could to help him."

Graham said he was "unable to talk properly with him" because "there were so many photographers around and Mr. Silvers was upset about it."

Man Uses Dynamite To Kill Two, Self

PITTSBURGH (UP) — A Construction project dynamite blaster set of an explosive charge in his car Thursday night killing himself, his estranged wife and a nine-year-old girl who was walking past eating an ice cream cone.

Seven others were injured.

Police said there was "no doubt" that Arthur Depew, 29, set off the blast which ripped his car to shreds and broke nearly every window in a crowded North Side block.

Depew and his bride of six months, Elaine Depew, 18, were sitting talking about a possible reconciliation. Witnesses saw him lean forward and look at the floor just before the blast.

Linda Kraus, who had just left a dairy with her sister and grandfather where they purchased ice cream cones, was beside the car when the explosion occurred.

She was hurled against a storefront like a matchstick in a hurricane. The nine-year-old died two hours later in Allegheny General Hospital.

The Depews died instantly in the explosion.

Police said Depew's brother-in-law, William Gitschier, Bridgeville, Pa., told them Depew previously had threatened to "blow up himself and his wife."

Depew worked as a dynamite blaster at a local construction project.

The force of the explosion shattered the car, tore off the roof and flipped the hood 60 feet into the air.

Hospital officials said three persons were detained and four others treated and released. Two of those admitted were 11-year-old Joan Kraus, sister of the dead girl, and Frank Panza, 55, her grandfather.

Officers said Gitschier told them his sister and brother-in-law had been separated for a short time and agreed to meet Thursday night to talk about a possible reconciliation. The meeting took place in Depew's car along a busy thoroughfare.

Four Acquitted; County Man Is One Convicted

HARRISBURG (UP)—Attorneys today began drawing up motions for a new trial for the five defendants convicted of an attempted $19,50,000 swindle of Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

The five, including former Commission Chairman Thomas J. Evans, 73, Coaldale, and suspended Commissioner James F. Torrance, 69, Export, both Republicans, were adjudged guilty on all counts against them by a seven man five woman jury Thursday night.

Four other defendants indicted on the same charge were acquitted.

In addition, Torrance and Evans were convicted on separate indictments charging them with misconduct in office for their part in the negotiation of a multi-million dollar contract with the Manu-Mine Research and Development Co., Reading, and for permitting the award of the contract without competitive bidding and without the prior approval of the Highways Department.

Torrance was found guilty on a third count of misbehavior in office which charged he "hampered, obstructed, and corruptly interferred with the proper and legitimate investigation" of the commission's operations with Manu-Mine.

Those convicted were the major figures in what the Commonwealth charged was one of "the greatest public swindles of all time."

Convicted of Cheating

Charles W. Stickler Jr., 42, president of Manu - Mine and Evans' nephew by marriage, and former vice president Clayton A. Landsidle, were found guilty both on the conspiracy charge and on a separate charge of "cheating by false pretenses" in the manipulation of the contract for filling of abandoned coal mines beneath the Northeastern Extension in Pennsylvania's anthracite fields in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties.

The fifth defendant found guilty was Paul J. McNeill, 45, West Reading, former commission finance director, who approved commission payments to Manu-Mine which the state charged were "exorbitant and unconscionable" and who played a key role in the negotiations of the contract.

The jury acquitted former commission legal counsel Theodore S. Paul, 67, Philadelphia; former turnpike engineer John D. Paul, 57, Harrisburg, and E. J. Donnelly 42, and G. J. Hudert, 48, both of the J. E. Greiner Co., Baltimore, the commission's engineering consultants dufing the planning of the Northeastern Extension.

All of the defendants refused to comment on the panel's decision. Attorneys for those convicted said they would immediately begin work on requests for a new trial which must be submitted within 10 days.

The jury, which sat in court for 42 days, deliberated only three hours and 35 minutes before an-

Denies Webster Doomed by New Road Project

A Highway Department official today denied rumors that "half of Webster will be wiped out" by the construction of a new four-lane highway between Webster and Monessen.

N. G. Bell, district engineer, said plans for the highway Route 906 are still indefinite, pending completion of a survey.

"However it doesn't seem likely that we'll get involved into any condemnation proceedings," he said. "Our plan is to carry the highway to the Donora-Webster bridge with as little property damage as possible."

Bell said this will probably be accomplished by separating the dual lane highway through Webster. In effect that will give the community one-way streets.

Bell emphasized that the exact design of the highway has not been determined for the entire route to Monessen.

Ike Is Blamed For Defeat of Big School Bill

WASHINGTON (UP) — House Democrats today blamed President Eisenhower for defeat of the big school construction bill by only five votes.

House Republicans defended the President. But they admitted that if he had given the bill stronger support its chances would have been better.

One Democrat said Eisenhower could have saved the bill by telephoning a dozen GOP congressmen.

The House killed the $1,500,000,000 program Thursday 208-203. The vote by party: 126 Democrats and 77 Republicans for passage; 97 Democrats and 111 Republicans against it.

"I lay defeat on the bill squarely at the feet of the President," said Rep. Augustine B. Kelley (D-Pa.,) chief sponsor of the compromise plan to have the federal government spent 300 million dollars a year for the next five years on classroom construction.

"The general ordered the retreat," said Rep. Edith Green (D-Ore.).

The House before killing the measure added an amendment by Rep. Stuyvesant Wainwright (R-N. Y.) to refuse any of the funds to school districts with segregated schools. The vote was 136 to 105.

Republicans said the close vote on the bill means another attempt will be made to pass it next year. Democrats said the bill is dead for a long time to come.

Other congressional news:

Cigarettes: Rep. John A. Blatnik (D-Minn.) said his subcommittee investigating filter cigarettes would demand the Federal Trade Commission hold hearings on filter tip advertising. He said the hearings would force the cigarette industry to "back up" its advertising claims for filters. He complained the cigarette industry has failed to accept invitations to appear before his subcommittee on the matter.

Rackets: The Senate Rackets Committee recalled United Textile Secretary - Treasurer Lloyd Klenert for questioning on whether he misused $40,000 in union funds. The committee wanted to question him about union finances during the past three years. Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said union records were available only for the past three years. He said the others were destroyed.

Natural gas: The natural gas bill has hit a snag in the House Rules Committee. Hearings are running longer than expected. House leaders have cancelled plans to begin debating the bill on the House floor next week.

Steel: The Senate Anti-Trust and Monopoly Subcommittee will begin hearings Aug. 6 on recent steel price increases. The hearings were scheduled as part of the subcommittee's general study of the steel industry's pricing policies.

Huntington Mayor Under Guard After Threats

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (UP) — Eugene Willis, the popular mayor of Huntington, has an around-the-clock police guard today and he carries a gun.

Someone tried to shoot the mayor Wednesday and Thursday night he received a telephoned threat.

"Tell the mayor the next time we won't miss," the anonymous caller told an attendant of the funeral home operated by Willis.

Willis exchanged shots with an unidentified motorist Wednesday night while he was on his way home. A bullet passed through one of his car windows, barely missing him. Police said Willis fired back through the front windshield and jumped out of his car and fired again.

"I don't know why on God's earth someone wants to kill me," he said.

The mayor obtained a permit to carry a gun last week following previous threats on his life.

Police said they had been unable to determine who might want to kill Willis. The mayor said one of the threats he received referred to a recent trial, but police said they doubted it had anything to do with the Elmer David Bruner murder trial here last month.

Bruner was convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of a socially prominent Huntington woman two months ago. During and after the trial, Judge John W. Daniel and Prosecutor Russell L. Daugherty said they received threats. Daugherty also obtained a permit to carry a gun.

Remembers Story of The Drowning Soldier

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)—The tragedy of a commercial air crash off Biak brought the name of that coral-fringed bit of equatorial island back into the news for the first time since the spring of 1944, when it was a World War II battleground.

It was, during the war, a place of tragedy also. It was the scene of bitter fighting for a time between American and Japanese troops. I remember it particularly for a tiny-scale tragedy during the U.S. invasion because it was there that I could have saved a human life and did not.

Biak is a steamy-hot concentration of jungle, brush, cliffs, and swamp just 50 miles south of the equator near the northwest end of New Guinea. At first gray of dawn on May 27 our shelling and bombing of the shore began. Its intensity soon obscured the coastline with a curtain of smoke and dust.

Perhaps because the coastline was not visible, our troop-hauling ships mistakenly took position two miles west of the designated landing beaches. The first wave of tracked landing vehicles that crawled across the green coral through the smoke discovered the error when they found themselves in a mangrove swamp.

Our ships were ordered to move to the proper position. The ship on which I was riding as a reporter got underway with one soldier still hanging at the bottom of the rope landing net from which he had been about to drop into a waiting landing vehicle. The landing craft itself swung out along our side, trying to keep abreast of us.

The soldier was weighted with a heavy pack, his gun, and ammunition. The strength in his hands gave out. When I first saw him, he was dropping into the water. He came slowly down the length of the ship, pawing the rolling, slick green water desperately against the weight that kept pulling his head back and down under.

Those of us at the rail on deck presumed the landing craft which was almost at his side would pick him up quickly. Any one of us could have vaulted over the side of the ship and helped him keep afloat.

But somehow the two-man crew of the landing craft failed to see him. While scores of men shouted frantically at the craft through the bombardment noise, he bobbed quickly astern.

The craft suddenly spotted him and raced after him. As his head started under, it reached him. A crewman swung out quickly with a hook pole — missed—and then dived in frantically after the vanishing head. It was too late. The crewman came up. The soldier was gone.

NEW YORK (UP) — The low temperature reported to the U.S. Weather Bureau this morning was 38 degrees at Piney, Wyo. The high Thursday was 109 degrees at Yuma, Ariz., and eedles and Thermal, Calif.

Begin Investigation of Mysterious Explosion Aboard Big Airliner

GEORGE AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UP) — Civil Aeronautics Board officials and the FBI today took charge of an investigation into a mysterious explosion that ripped a large hole in the side of an airliner, hurtling a heavily-insured passenger 10,000 feet to his death.

The CAB planned to make an "inch by inch" search for powder marks in the shattered rear section of the Western airliner. At the same time searchers combed the desolate desert area in an attempt to find the body of the missing passenger, S. F. Binstock, 62, of Canoga Park, Calif.

FBI agents also stepped into the investigation to determine if the explosion might have been a suicide plot. The FBI disclosed that Binstock, who boarded the plane at Las Vegas, Nev., had taken out $125,000 in flight insurance Wednesday, naming his wife, Eva, as beneficiary.

The two-engine Convair made an emergency landing here following the explosion high over the California desert early Thursday. Twelve other passengers and a crew of three escaped injury.

"I thought someone had run into me," Western Airlines pilot Milton Shirk said. "I notified Los Angeles International Airport by radio that I was going to make an emergency landing at the Air Force base. We came in smoothly without any difficulty."

The explosion occurred at 10,000 feet and was centered in the lavatory of the airliner which had stopped at Las Vegas, Nev., 47 minutes earlier on a flight from Minneapolis to Los Angeles. Binstock boarded the plane in the predawn hours at Las Vegas and passengers said he entered the tiny washroom shortly after takeoff.

Stewardess Joan Hollinger narrowly escaped being blown out of the plane with Binstock. She was in the rear section making coffee for the passengers when the airliner was rocked with the blast. She said her hat was blown off by the suction but she managed to grab "something solid" and hold on.

The ill-fated passenger, who formerly lived in Pittsburgh, was a retired jewelry store operator. Attorney Jerome Rosenfield, representing the Jewelers' Board of Trade, said he was told that Binstock had encountered financial difficulties.

Mrs. Binstock said she was unaware that her husband was in Las Vegas until he phoned her from there Wednesday night. She said her husband traveled a lot and always wrote flight insurance but usually only for about $20,000.

nouncing it had reached its verdicts at 8:15 p.m. edt.

Two of the defendants were not present in the courtroom when the verdicts were announced.

Two Reported Ill

Evans, who had sat through the entire trial, was reported by his attorneys to be "ill" and confined to his hotel room during the fateful night session.

Theodore S. Paul has been hospitalized in Philadelphia since Monday with a respiratory infection.

Co-prosecutors Huette F. Dowling, Dauphin County district attorney, and Deputy Attorney General Vincent G. Panati said they were "completely satisfied" with the outcome of the trial.

"The case centered around the arrangement between the commission officials and the Manu-Mine officials," Panati said. "In that regard the jury completely vindicated our position. The jury used great discernment and intelligence in assessing the defendants."

Gov. George M. Leader, whose administration's investigation broke the scandal, was also reported pleased with the results of the trial.

"I am very pleased that the court and jury of Dauphin County have brought in what I believe was a very proper verdict," the governor said in a statement issued through his office while he was vacationing.

Those convicted were expected to file their motions for a new trial in the near future, and then request another 20 to 30 days delay to file "additional reasons" for a new trial.

The arguments for the new trial will probably be heard by Dauphin County Court, sitting en banc, in October. If the convictions are upheld, trial judge Homer L. Kreider would set the sentences for the convicted immediately thereafter.

The defendants may also bring their appeals through the state Superior Court up to the state Supreme Court.

The five face maximum penalties of two years in jail and fines of $500 for conspiracy. Stickler and Landsidle also face up to five years in prison and $5,000 fines on the draud conviction.

The misconduct in office convictions against Torrance and Evans carry no specified penalty, with the decision up to the court.

Congressman Raps Topping For Gold Claim

NEW YORK (UP) — New York Yankee owner Dan Topping got his knuckles rapped by a congressman today for trying to stake a gold claim in Brooklyn, and the whole matter seemed to be building into a baseball battle.

Topping insisted Thursday that Brooklyn will become "Yankee territory" if and when the Brooklyn Dodgers move to Los Angeles —meaning that no other American League team could move into Flatbush.

Topping's claim was immediately blasted by Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) in Washington as "outrageous and selfish." Celler, chairman of the powerful House anti-trust subcommittee that is investigating whether baseball should be placed under anti-trust laws, warned that such statements "make it more difficult for us here in Washington to give relief" to baseball.

The Yankees stand to make a lot more money next year, many observers believe, if both the Dodgers and New York Giants abandon New York City—the revenue coming from increased attendance and increased fees for television and radio.

Co., but "we are optimistic from the standpoint of our own case."

The recent $6 a ton steel price advance is "holding up pretty well" and was "justified," he added. While no further increases are contemplated at present, "we will be faced with labor increases again next year . . ."

New Outbreaks Of Flu Reported By Health Service

WASHINGTON (UP) — New outbreaks of influenza were reported today by the Public Health Service. The agency said some of the cases had been identified as the "Oriental flu" virus.

Some cases of "Oriental flu" it said, were found in Kentucky, the Thule Air Force Base in Greenland, and aboard a military transport arriving from Seattle July 17.

Other cases, including several hundred at the Boy Scout Jamboree, were identified as suspected flu or flu-like respiratory ailments.

About 600 Boy Scouts who attended the jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa., were stricken with respiratory illness, the agency said.

Pennsylvania health authorities said an "influenza - like illness" occurred first among the California and Louisiana contingents and spread through most sections of the jamboree.

Kentucky health officials said a virus similar to the Far East strain had been found in an outbreak of flu in an encampment in Brathitt County.

Hair Raising Story

CHICAGO (UP) — A Chicago housewife can't explain the long and short of it to her husband. Mrs. Lillian Paskuly's daughter Georgene, 13, has braids 37 inches long. Another daughter's hair extends well below her waist. Mrs Paskuly said her husband's "hair is getting thin now, and he keeps asking what our secret is."

Right of Way' Means Nothing, Engineer Says

ERIE, Pa. (UP) — Engineer S. . Reid of the Bessemer and Lake rie Railroad wondered today if a ilroad's "right of way" had any eaning.

Reid was easing his coal and ore train along Thursday hen he saw a tractor trailer com- g over a crossing. He stopped s train.

Raymond Borst also stopped his g truck, with the trailer across e tracks.

Reid and Borst got out. Reid ked Borst to move his truck. rst said he was on the crossing st, was trying to make a left n onto 12th street paralleling tracks and couldn't do it with train almost against his trail- He asked Reid to back up the in.

Reid refused. Borst also refused to get his trailer off the crossing.

About a half hour later a police patrol car zoomed up to the crossing to see what had caused traffic on both sides to back up for several blocks.

The police listened patiently to Reid and Borst and finally convinced the engineer to back up his train.

Borst hitched up his trailer and made his left turn. Police then held up the train a little while longer so the horn-honking motorists could get on their way.

Brickner Known as 'Gustave'

CALAIS, France (Special to the Daily Independent) — Gus Brickner, the 44-year old Charleroi steelworker who will try to swim the English Channel next month, has one "continental."

He is now identifying himself as "Gustave Brickner."

"It sounds more impressive," laughed Gustave.

Brickner has been here almost two weeks now. He'll probably train for at least three more before attempting to stroke across the treacherous Channel.

"I had workouts last week in waves five feet high," related Brickner. "My trainer is well satisfied with my progress and I feel I've learned quite a bit about the Channel already."

Take Picture

Brickner said a United Press photographer dropped by the other day to take some pictures.

"We had some difficulty," conceded Gustave. "He couldn't speak English and I couldn't speak French."

Brickner has been spending most of his time in serious training. But he's managed to see some of the sights of Calais, too.

"This place is something spectacular to see," said Brickner.

Gustave still doesn't know what day he'll make his Channel attempt. The exact date is selected by special commission of French and English authorities who regulate all Channel swims.

"Its not really too cold," he said, "although the temperature seems to change every day.

"If the breaks go my way, I'm sure I can do it. I've waited a long time for this chance.

"I expect to make the try between Aug. 2 and 6. They tell me that the tide should be just right during that period and the water at its calmest period."

Brickner has taken part in several world championship distance swims in Lake Ontario and last year swam 25 miles in the Allegheny River.

"I know what I'm up against," he said.

'Not Making Money'

"I've a daughter 20 years old who just made me a grandfather last month," he said, "also another daughter 17 and a third only.

Please tell them I'm doing fine, am in good condition and am grateful for the chance to do this".

Brickner said his swim is being sponsored by Bill Falconer, a Pittsburgh trucking contractor.

"I'm not making any money on this," he said, "but perhaps I'll be able to make a little through endorsements and television appearances in the states afterwards if I'm successful."

"The food here is wonderful, although it took me a few days to get used to it," he said. At every meal people look at me like I'm a freak because I drink milk or eat chocolate with my meals. I don't touch any alcohol when I'm training although back home and in training I have a beer now and then."

TOPS FOR THRILLS — The "Jack Rabbit" roller coaster is expected to lure thousands at the annual Monessen Community Picnic at Kennywood Park Tuesday. Fred C. Stockus, general chairman, predicts this year's crowd will surpass last year's record attendance.

Bargain Tickets for Picnic Selling Fast

Amusement tickets for the annual Monessen Community Picnic Tuesday at Kennywood Park are selling at a rapid clip, according to Fred C. Stockus, general chairman.

Stockus said only a few thousand of the 30,000 amusement tickets placed on sale here two weeks ago are still available. He urges residents to purchase tickets in Monessen rather than at the park.

He pointed out that a strip of seven tickets costs only 25 cents if purchased in Monessen. The strip costs 42 cents at the park.

The first bus will leave Monessen for Kennywood at 9:30 Tuesday morning. The last bus will leave at 1:30 p. m. The round-trip fare for children is 90 cents. Adult's fare is $1.50. Return trips will begin at 7:30 p. m.

Mayor Hugo J. Parente today proclaimed Tuesday as "Community Picnic Day" and requested that all business and services be suspended for the day "so that everyone can enjoy a day of recreation with their neighbors and friends."

More to Offer

Stockus said that Kennywood will have more to offer this year for Monessen picnickers. Already filled withe very imaginable kind of amusements from roller coasters on down to the nation's largest merry-go-round, Kennywood has added a unique new ride this season. It is the "Round-Up", a spine-tingling ride.

The Round-Up is a cylindrical device that accommodates the riders in niches around its perimeter. They stand throughout the ride, which begins as the cylinder starts rotating while level.

Then the whole ride tilts almost upright and continues to spin. The spectators who watch from the sidelines get almost as much a sensation as the riders themselves, who leave the Round-Up limp with excitement.

The Old Mill has been improved with scenes inside depicting a "Trip Around the World" — mechanized and life-size characters portraying interesting sights from many foreign lands. The Zoomerang, another popular "dark" ride, also has new and exciting novelties inside its dark caverns.

Possibly the most unique addition in the park is a television camera in the Enchanted Forest, which allows everyone a chance to "become a TV star." The picture from inside is transmitted to a screen outside the building where the public view the "actors."

Croatian Church Ground-breaking Sunday, Aug. 18

Rev. Theodore Benkovic, OFM, who was assigned in 1953 to organize the Croatian parish, said that ground will be broken on Sunday, August 18.

The church will be located in the 1100 block of Leeds Ave. It will be a one-story cement block structure, which will be faced with brick.

Father Benkovic said the proposed church will seat 300 persons. He estimated cost at about $60,000.

H. Ernest Clark, of Monessen, is the architect, while Haury Brothers, of Monessen, has been awarded the contract.

Father Benkovic said the church should be ready by Christmas.

A meeting of the Ladies Guild will be held tonight to make plans for the ground-breaking ceremony which will also include a banquet in the evening at the Croatian Hall.

For almost the last four years, the new parish has been hearing mass at St. Hyacinth's Church.

Attend Salvation Army Music Camp

Monessen Lions Hear Talk on Atomic Energy

Arthur T. Stratton, governor of Lions District 14-E, was guest speaker at a regular meeting of the Monessen Lions Club at the Oak Home last night.

Stratton, who is associated with the Atomic Energy Commission of Westinghouse, spoke on atomic energy and also told of his recent trip to the annual Lions convention in San Francisco, Calif.

The business meeting was conducted by Daniel Salotti, president. Reports were given by George A. Stofka, secretary.

During the business session, a letter was read from City Council thanking the Lions for its recent free fireworks display at Memorial Stadium. Council also expressed appreciation for the picnic tables donated for City Park. The Lions have also provided furnishings for the Bon Air Terrace playground.

Salotti announced that the annual Lions stag picnic will be held at the Croatian picnic grounds in Pricedale on Thursday, Aug. 22. Nick Puleo is chairman of this year's affair.

Following the regular meeting, Stratton met with the board of directors.

Cub Scout Pack Meets at Park

Cub Scout Pack 7 met last night at the City Park for another of the outdoor sessions scheduled for the summer. It was a covered dish dinner followed by a softball game.

The game featured Pack 7 and Rostraver Pack 1, and the latter team was victorious.

There was a meeting of den mothers and committeemen under the direction of Cubmaster Andrew Macko. Plans were made for the next meeting, Aug. 29 at the park.

INCOME TAX BILL FOR ONE CENT — Mrs. Ruby Crosby holds up her income tax bill from the U. S. Treasury department, informing her she owes one cent, in Los Angeles. By spending 15 cents for a check and three cents for postage, plus the one cent, she can "get right" for 19 cents, or 19 times the bill.

No Drought Damage In Rostraver Twp.

Rostraver Twp. farmlands escaped serious damage from the recent drought which "burned out" many areas throughout the state.

That was the report today from Westmoreland County Farm Agent Joseph Thurston following a tour through the county.

"We may not be living in the garden spot of the world," quipped Thurston, "but it would be hard to disprove that point at the moment."

Thurston revealed that he has just returned from a trip through the state. He said many farm areas down east are practically ruined as a result of the extended heat wave.

In contrast, the Westmoreland County damage was negligible.

"We have had some reports that the second crop of hay was damaged, but that appears to be spotty," Thurston said.

He also contended that the corn crop was not seriously affected by the heat.

Ironically the weather actually benefitted most county farmers. The clear days were ideal for harvesting a better than average yield of small grains; oats, wheat and barley.

"Rostraver Twp., which received more rain earlier in the week than most sections of the county, seems to have survived the drought in especially good shape," stated Thurston.

"There may have been some burned-out pasture land but this week's rain should quickly restore it," the farm agent added.

Bridge Tourney Winners Listed

There was a meeting of the Magic City Bridge Club last night at the Charleroi Elks Club with eleven and a half tables in play.

High score winners were, north-south, Mike Tomich, of Clairton and E. M. Arentzen, of Charleroi, first; Harry L. Glick and Mrs. William Weiser, both of Pittsburgh, second. East-west winners were Mr. and Mrs. Merle Thomas, of Uniontown, first and Frank Protin, of Charleroi and Mrs. E. J. Feeney, of Brookline, second.

There will be no game next week since the summer nationals will be played in Pittsburgh from July 27 to Aug. 3.

Dulles in Canada

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles flew to Canada today for a weekend get-acquainted visit with John G. Diefenbaker, Canada's new prime minister.

State Commander, VFW, Here Tuesday

The newly-elected state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, William J. Tepsic of Pittsburgh, will visit Monessen next Tuesday.

He is scheduled to arrive at the city's Allison-Lescanac Post 1190, VFW, at 10 p. m.

The state commander plans to tour VFW posts throughout the district next week.

John Hurrianko, commander of the Monessen VFW Post, said a luncheon will be served during the visit.

'Airman of the Month'

A-1C Raymond Coughanour, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kuma of Belle Vernon R. D. 2, has been named "Airman of the Month" at Geiger Field in Spokane, Washington.

He is a jet engine mechanic specialist with the 497th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron.

His commanding officer, Lt. Col. Warren A. Bennett pointed out that only one airman is selected each month by Geiger Field "as an outstanding example of the young Americans who are the backbone of our nation's defense."

A native of Fayette City, Airman Coughanour attended Perryopolis High School. He later worked in the Donora plant of the American Steel and Wire Works before entering service.

Airman Coughanour started military service in May, 1954. He undertook basic training at Samson Air Force Base, N. Y.

Graduating from basic training in July 1954, he entered jet engine school at Chanute AFB, Ill. Completing a five-month course, Airman Coughanour was reassigned to Japan.

In 1956, he returned to the states and was assigned to the 497th Fighter Squadron.

His selection as "Airman of the Month" won him an identification bracelet, a personalized name plate an appearance before the Spokane Chamber of Commerce and a three-day pass as a guest of one of Spokane's leading hotels.

Joint Effort Needed In the Mon Valley

IT WOULD APPEAR that all of the dozen or so communities in this area considering formation of a regional planning organization would have something to gain from such an association.

James H. Pickford, regional director of the state's bureau concerned with community planning, put the point well when he spoke this week to the community representatives exploring the idea. The time is coming, said Mr. Pickford, when smaller communities just cannot "go it alone" when it comes to the larger problems of development, expansion and the provision of local government services. The problems are too big and too costly to be dealt with on a small scale.

Groups of communities in close proximity to one another will do well to read this handwriting and make an early start on cooperative thinking and planning.

This section of the Monongahela Valley is certainly tending more and more to become a single urban area. While the various communities may well keep their political identities, we cannot much longer pretend that we are isolated from one another. More and more of our problems will become common problems and might better be discussed and worked at cooperatively.

* * *

IT IS ALMOST a natural consequence of associations of this kind that the members begin by looking for "handouts". While it is true that there are grants and technical assistance available to regional planning groups, these features should not be the motivating force in their organization. Probably no community should participate in a regional planning effort unless its citizens are prepared to contribute generously of time, talent, money or all three. The larger communities, because of their larger revenue sources, should be prepared to stand a major share of the effort and expense.

It is also likely that some individual communities may stand off from participation on the mistaken impression that they are sacrificing some competitive advantage to others. There is nothing about a regional planning program properly administered which should act to promote advantage for any member community at the expense of another. The whole object of the planning is to create an area in which communities act together for the benefit of all.

The communities of the Monongahela Valley could much better tackle some of their big physical and economic problems by pulling together than by pulling apart.

New Auto Laws?

MOST AUTOMOBILE drivers are enough concerned about highway safety to favor stiffer regulation of themselves. A survey question put to a representative cross-section of drivers in the U. S. discloses that six out of every ten drivers want teeth put into the speed laws to help curb traffic accidents and lower the injury and fatality rates.

Most of those answering the questionnaire favored adoption of the Connecticut system as a pattern for all states. In Connecticut a driver convicted of speeding is not only fined and sometimes punished otherwise, but his driving license is taken away for 30 days, and if the offense is repeated the license is taken away for 60 days.

Pennsylvania, after operating under a similar plan for a number of years, modified it.

Uniform rules and laws long have been one of the major needs in dealing with drivers who ignore and defy the simple points of safety which in the main are similar from state to state.

Meanwhile it seems advisable to let stiffer enforcement of the laws now on the books, plus more certain punishment of violators, be given a chance to function in the safety drive. The Connecticut system, if in use in other states, would be fine on paper, but if it were not adhered to by drivers, enforcement officers and courts more rigidly than existing laws, the result might not have much effect in teaching drivers to hew to the line.

As long as traffic violations are not scrupulously policed, as long as violations are "fixable", or as long as violations are allowed to stay on police and court dockets for weeks and months or permitted to lapse entirely — as long as these conditions are common we are not nearly so concerned about traffic safety as we let on.

Merry-Go-Round—

Antitrust Suit Cancellation Is Mysterious

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — One of the biggest antitrust suits planned by the Justice Department in years has been suddenly and mysteriously dropped.

It was to have been filed in U. S. District Court in Milwaukee July 8 against three important gas companies—American Natural Gas, Peoples Gas Light & Coke, and Northern Natural Gas.

Mr. Pearson

The Justice Department had the bill of complaint drafted and a press release all ready to issue. But the press release was never issued. The bill of complaint was never filed.

Suddenly and mysteriously the antitrust suit was called off.

Ex-Gov. Tom Dewey, counsel for Peoples Gas, is given credit by some for having the antitrust suit called off suddenly. Dewey is very close to Attorney General Brownell, who managed his campaign for president in 1944.

Dewey was out of the United States and not available for comment this week, but in the past he has told this column that he made it a practice never to intervene in matters affecting the Eisenhower administration in Washington.

Others attributed the sudden cancellation to the fact that an antitrust case of this kind would have focused attention upon the natural gas industry just at a time when the Eisenhower administration is trying to pass a new natural gas bill exempting the industry from Federal regulation.

Tennessee Gas Transmission had obtained from Canada the right to tap its vast gas reserves with a pipeline linking Canada to Texas. This two-way line could have used gas from the Gulf States when needed or gas from Canada when and where needed.

Secret Conference In Chicago

With natural gas in short supply in the northern United States, Canadian gas is highly coveted. Various companies have been eyeing the vast and largely undeveloped wealth of Canada. So when Tennessee Gas Transmission secured this concession, it ran into a secret monopoly move by the old Sam Insull holdings in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

The Insull holdings are now represented by American Natural Gas, Peoples Gas Light & Coke, and Northern Natural. They serve Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota and Indiana.

These three companies held a confidential meeting with Gardner Simonds head of Tennessee Gas Transmission, at the Chicago Club December 11 after he offered to sell them gas.

The three who participated in this closed-door conference were John Merriam of Northern Natural Gas; Ralph McIlvaine of American Natural Gas, and James Oates of Peoples Gas Light & Coke.

They took Simonds by surprise by demanding that he sell them three-quarters of the stock in the new pipeline from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. Simonds emphatically said no.

After this abortive conference in Chicago the three executives of the old Insull empire asked for another conference. This took place in the Carlton Hotel in Washington on January 3, at which time the three competitors asked Simonds how far he was willing to go in selling them stock in his new pipeline. He replied that he would give them 40 per cent of the stock. They replied that they would take 75 per cent or nothing.

The three midwest utility executives then told Simonds he could take it or leave it. This was their final offer.

Governors Get Sore

Following this, various state utility commissions and governors got into the act. The Wisconsin Public Service Commission was especially incensed, since Wisconsin is desperately hard up for gas. So was Sen. Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin. Gov. Vernon Thomson of Wisconsin also testified before the Federal Power Commission urging that the pipeline be built from Canada to the Gulf.

Other governors who urged the pipeline were Mennen Williams of Michigan, Orville Freeman of Minnesota, Democrats; and William Stratton of Illinois, Republican. They represent areas badly in need of gas due in part to the defense industries concentrated in the middle west; due also to the coming of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

In Chicago, several thousand homes have applied for gas but can't get it due to insufficiency of supply. In Minnesota, plans are under way for the rehabilitation of worked-over iron ore mines, but this is dependent upon an ample supply of gas.

Today and Tomorrow—

Idealism and Two Generals

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Of the "many long discussions about our respective doctrines", which he had with Marshal Zhukov some twelve years ago, one point in particular seems to stand out in the President's mind. The Soviet commander had asserted that Communism is "idealistic" whereas our doctrine is "materialistic." The President remembers that he "was very hard put to it" to reply. Judging by his remarks at the press conference last week, he still feels that he did not win the argument by a knockout.

Mr. Lippmann

The two soldiers were agreed, we learn, that a system is idealistic if its ideal is that people should "believe that their greatest satisfaction in life is in sacrfcing for the state, giving to the state." Theirs, it would seem, "not to make reply, theirs not to reason why, theirs but to do and die." With this military definition of the ideal society, Gen. Eisenhower was bound to be in trouble about the comparative idealism of Communism and liberal democracy. This was especially the case when, in describing our own society, he accepted the view of Marshal Zhukov that "a man can earn what he pleases, save what he pleases, buy what he pleases." No wonder the argument of the two soldiers was, as the President said on Wednesday, "very tough." Both of them were hazy not only as to what were their "respective doctrines" but as to what was in fact the character of their two societies.

As we see him through the President's recollections, Marshal Zhukov was then a veteran professional soldier but a new, raw, and very naive amateur in the Communist Party. He had found it easy and convenient to believe that the Communist ideal is the ideal of the soldier, sworn to live and die obeying the orders of the rulers of the state. Bravely, he assured the American general that Stalin did not "force" the contribution of the people to the state. Stalin was "teaching a people to support that contribution."

Called Idealistic

This, argued the Marshal, was very idealistic. It was more idealistic than any other social system. Is it not idealistic to give, like a soldier, everything to the state? And is it not very idealistic of Stalin to teach people to enjoy being so idealistic?

Had someone, who was versed in Leninism, been present at these discussions, he would have pointed out that the word "teaching" covered the whole vast apparatus of the so-called dictatorship of the proletariat. The earlier Marxists, those before Lenin, had believed that there would be a brief and regrettable, but necessary, period of dictatorship for the purpose of socializing the means of production. But then human nature would become re-educated to selflessness by the new institution of socialist property. After that there would be no more need of coercion, and the state would wither away.

But years before he seized power, Lenin had shed the idealistic illusions of the earlier Marxists, he did not pretend to believe that human nature could soon be changed. Communism, he taught, could not be carried on without what was virtually a permanent dictatorship. Lenin, who was quite truly the founder of Soviet Communism, was a harsh and implacable realist. He would have had only scorn for the two tender-minded generals in search of idealism.

Old Fair Tale

And so, no doubt sincerely but most naively, Marshal Zhukov was telling Gen. Eisenhower an old fairy tale. It was the tale of an ideal condition of selflessness, of a community of the regenerate, which for thousands of years has been the dream of many religious communities, among them the early Christmas. The dream is entirely unrelated to the realities of the Soviet state, or to the teachings of Lenin, who is its prophet.

In the liberal democratic order the ideal is not that the highest good is to sacrifice for the state. The state exists for the good of man. The highest political good is that the sacrifice must be justified to the people of the community, that it must be explained, debated, assented to, and that there shall be an audit and a reckoning after the sacrifice has been made.

It is not true, as Marshal Zhukov said, that the liberal democratic order permits everyone to "do anything." Gen. Eisenhower should have had no difficulty replying to that. For all our economic activities take place within an environment of laws and customs which regulates them. Men, women and children work within the laws of property and within the labor laws. They can build only within the zoning laws. They can save and they can spend only within the tax laws.

We live within a system of laws and not in a state of anarchy. The ideal of our system, which we approximate but never wholly achieve, is that this system of laws shall never be arbitrary, and that because it is debatable, it will, within the limits of human frailty, be reasonable and aim at justice.

Disarmament Problem Is 'Now or Never'

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — In his informative report on disarmament this week Secretary Dulles was addressing two different audiences for two different purposes.

He was seeking to convey to the American people an assurance that the Administration was not going too far too fast in the uncharted field of arms reduction and control.

Mr. Drummond

He was seeking to convey to the Soviet leaders a galvanizing sense of urgency to make a solid beginning soon — in their self-interest and ours — to put some brake on the nuclear arms race.

What is the special sense of urgency which Mr. Dulles is invoking? Is it just negotiating rhetoric when the American Secretary of State says that unless an agreement is quickly forthcoming "the problem may soon become totally unmanageable."

When a diplomat says that the problem may soon become "totally unmanageable," he means "now or never."

Mr. Dulles is contending that if Moscow and Washington fail to begin nuclear arms control now, the opportunity to do so may well slip from our grasp entirely.

Prospects Improved

Why? Superficially, at least, you could make the opposite case. These disarmament talks have been going on for eleven years and we are much nearer agreement than we were at the beginning. The prospects for some disarmament have improved with time.

But new factors are now present which give weight to the "now or never" argument. It is undoubtedly true that the Soviet Union had to very nearly catch up with the West on nuclear weapons before any arms control was possible. But now that there is something like an atomic equilibrium, we will, if we go on and on building up and up, find it increasingly difficult to call a halt; perhaps impossible.

Here are the reasons:

Neither side is going to disarm in the foreseeable future on the basis of trust. Therefore there can be arms reduction only where it can be made visible and enforceable.

There are two vital points at which nuclear disarmament is unattainable because they cannot be inspected.

There can be no enforceable agreement to reduce the stockpiles of nuclear weapons because it is entirely possible to conceal such stockpiles completely.

There can be no enforceable agreement to reduce the volume of fissionable material already produced to make nuclear weapons because there is no method of detecting or accounting for past production.

Thus the longer we postpone a beginning agreement, the constantly bigger will be the volume of weapons and fissionable material which cannot be embraced in such an agreement.

New Nightmare

Finally, there is a relatively new nightmare which haunts American policy-makers and which, we believe, cannot fail to haunt the Kremlin. We know and Moscow knows that the time is near when a relatively cheap but massively destructive hydrogen bomb can be made. When that time comes that hydrogen bombs are available almost anywhere, then all prospect of disarmament is out the window and world war would be at the whim of the weakest and most reckless.

"As matters are going," Mr. Dulles said frankly "the time will come when the pettiest and most irresponsible dictator could get hold of weapons with which to threaten immense harm."

Only an early agreement which will end the production of nuclear weapons and permit the suspension of tests can keep these weapons from dangerously spreading around the world and ending up in the hip pocket of a little dictator-on-the-make.

These are the real reasons why there is a sense of urgency in the London talks.

As to the temptation to go too far too fast, there are bound to be some risks that cannot be foreseen, but as one not acclaimed for his flexibility, Mr. Dulles very usefully warns that "the risks of seeking to move forward are far less than the risks of being frightened into immobility."

Behind The News—

Japanese-American Relations Improved

By CHARLES M. McCANN

Japanese feeling toward the United States has taken a decided turn for the better.

At the same time, there is growing resentment against Soviet Russia.

Mr. McCann

The biggest development in Japanese - American relations was the decision of the United States to let a Japanese court try American GI William S. Girard for killing a Japanese woman.

This was a matter of national pride. Before the final decision came, there was heated talk that the United States was trying to trample on Japanese rights.

But there has been another development resulting from the United States decision to withdraw American combat troops from Japan.

Will Miss Dollars

Now, people in Japan are talking about the millions of dollars which the GIs pour into the Japanese economy.

It has begun to occur to them also that the withdrawal of the troops jeopardizes the jobs of a lot of Japanese people.

Since the troop withdrawal decision was made, about 6,000 Japanese employed at American troop bases have been dismissed. Another 7,000 are expected to lose their jobs by the end of September.

About 127,000 Japanese are still employed by the American forces. Of these, about 70,000 work for the ground forces which are to be withdrawn.

Provincial and city authorities face the loss of the various payments made by the United States forces for the use of firing ranges, drill grounds and other military establishments.

Resentment toward Russia is growing largely because of the refusal of the Soviet government to enter into a fishing agreement.

Fishing is a basic part of the Japanese economy. Negotiations for a treaty which would permit Japanese fishing vessels to operate in waters off the Siberian coast have been stalled again and again.

To make the situation worse, Russia announced last Saturday that an area of more than 6,000 miles off the naval base of Vladivostok has been closed to foreign ships and planes.

There has been a suggestion that the Russian decree was linked up with military security. But the area in question has been effectively closed to foreign shipping and aircraft without any decree.

It appears that the decree really was intended to exclude Japanese fishing vessels from an exceedingly valuable fishing grounds.

Japanese Foreign Minister Aichiro Fujiyama announced Tuesday that he proposed to send a strong protest to Moscow.

Japanese newspapers are denouncing the Soviet decree as a gross violation of international law.

Japanese people never forget, either, that Russia still refuses to account for thousands of prisoners who are believed to be still in slave labor camps nearly 12 years after the end of World War II.

Worrell, Pottios Await AA Classic

Both Myron Pottios, of Charleroi and Red Worrell, of Centerville will be leaving next month for Tennessee to participate in the National Prep All-American grid classic, sponsored by the Wigwam Wisemen. The game is set for Crump Stadium in Memphis on August 30 . . . By the way, local grocer Lew Smith, a rabid grid fan, has never been able to witness a college game due to his Saturday work schedule, so he is anxiously looking forward to next year's Pitt-Penn State game on Thanksgiving Day. The Panther-Nittany Lions clash will be the "kickoff" of the sports program in Pittsburgh's Bi-Centennial year celebration. Another attraction will be the Major League All-Star game in '59.

Fraley Sees Patterson

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Tommy Jackson, billed in the fistic marts as the "Hurricane," will prove along about 10:24 p.m. e.d.t. Monday night that he's not an ill wind.

In roughly the seventh round, the "Hurricane" will do Floyd Patterson a lot of good by blowing his chances at Floyd's heavyweight championship.

Jackson, a man who hates chopped steak and likes hamburger, and you'll have to figure out that one yourself, by the seventh round should be up to his hips in canvas and up to his eyes in Salisbury steak.

Ordinarily you wouldn't expect this bout to draw flies. The only thing Jackson, the Spartan from Sparta, Ga., has going for him is magnificent physical condition. It is no secret that he couldn't knock off your Easter bonnet with a baseball bat.

However, you can't beat the fact that this is the only heavyweight championship fight available Monday night.

There just aren't any legitimate heavyweight challengers around and so Patterson, willing or unwilling, is forced to start what may well be a "Bum of the Month" club a la Joe Louis. This certainly makes a good start.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Tourney Trouble

Whether it's the last flight of your company tournament or the National Open, tournament play puts extra strain on any player. But guard against it!

The idea is simply to go out there and play your own game to the best of your ability. Don't try for extra distance off the tees. Don't try to get fancy with your irons. Don't agonize over putts. Play your own game.

I pass this advice along because this is the time when a lot of golfers play a company tournament or a club tournament or may be even a city or state tournament. In my first few tournaments, I did a lot of stupid things. I thought that, because it was a TOURNAMENT, I had to put something extra into my shots. How wrong I was!

Later I learned just to play my best. And if that wasn't good enough . . . well, you can't win 'em all.

Rote Key Man In Six-Player Lion-Packer Deal

DETROIT (UP) — Coach Buddy Parker of the Detroit Lions said today he was "happy" to have quarterback Tobin Rote, the key man in a six-player trade negotiated with the Green Bay Packers.

The Lions, who finished second in the Western Division of the National Football League last season with a 9-3 record, have two signal callers under tow, Bobby Layne and Jerry Reichow.

But Layne, a long-time veteran, has been plagued with a sore right shoulder for about three years and is nearing the end of his playing career. Reichow, a graduate of Iowa, was a rookie last year and saw only limited service.

Rote was the league's top quarterback last season and has pulverized the Lions on occasion. He led the league in pass completions, yardage and attempted passes.

To obtain Rote and a second man, halfback Val Joe Walker, from the Packers, the Lions traded halfback Don McIlhenney, tackle Oliver Spencer, guard Jim Salsbury and tackle Norm Masters.

Ozarks Host to Donora Tonight

The Monessen Ozarks riding high after a win over Fayette City Wednesday night host Donora at home tonight at Ninth Street Park.

Very close to a playoff berth, the Ozarks are "going like mad" to win that fourth and possibly third slot.

Game time is 6 o'clock tonight.

Perry 8-1 Winner Over Van Voorhis

Perryopolis defeated Van Voorhis last night, 8-1 behind 13-strikeout hurling by Bill Thomas and the hitting of Dante DiVirgilio.

DiVirgilio doubled twice and clubbed a single, to pace a nine-hit Perry attack.

Mike Shuback homered for Van Voorhis' only tally.

Fayette City roared back from a loss to the Monessen Ozarks Wednesday night with a 3-1 victory over Donora last night on excellent pitching by Frank Valla.

Donora missed a chance to break the game open in the sixth when a squeeze failed and the next batter fanned after the bases were loaded one run in and one away.

Five Clubs Near Top of NL

Cards Now Half-Game Out of 1st

By MILTON RICHMAN

Get out that shoe horn again because five clubs are all trying to squeeze into first pace today.

The Cardinals moved within a half-game of first place by beating Brooklyn, 3-2, Thursday night, and the Redlegs closed to within a game of the lead with a 9-1 victory over Pittsburgh.

Only one game separates the first four clubs — Milwaukee, St. Louis, Brooklyn and Cincinnati-with fifth - place Philadelphia climbing to within only 2½ games of the top as a result of a 5-3 decision over the Braves.

The Cards threw a monkey wrench in Brooklyn's plans to take over the league lead when they beat Don Newcombe Thursday night for the first time in seven years at St. Louis.

Newcombe and Herm Wehmeier were tied at 2-2 until the Cards cracked through for the winning run in the eighth on singles by Alvin Dark and Stan Musial and Wally Moon's sacrifice fly.

Fowler Checks Bucs

Art Fowler of Cincinnati went the distance for the first time this year in checking the Pirates on seven hits. In addition, he drove in the Redlegs' first two runs with a bases-loaded single off Ronnie Kline, who lost his sixth straight game and 14th of the campaign. Ed Bailey and Gus Bell each homered.

Robin Roberts of the Phillies scored his first victory since June 6 in beating the Braves although Dick Farrell had to be called in to get the final out. Roberts gave up nine hits, including Hank Aaron's 30th homer in the fourth inning to post his seventh victory against 13 defeats. Ed Bouchee drove in three of Philadelphia's runs as Warren Spahn suffered the loss.

Mike McCormick, 18-year-old bonus southpaw, won his first major league game in pitching the Giants to a 5-2 triumph over the Cubs, but he needed ninth-inning relief from Marv Grissom. McCormick struck out seven and gave up all six Chicago hits. Daryl Spencer homered for the Giants.

In the American League, the White Sox shaved the Yankees' lead to 3½ games with a 6-2 triumph over the world champions; Boston defeated Kansas City, 5-3; Washington edged Cleveland, 3-2 in 10 innings, and Baltimore blanked Detroit, 3-0.

Dick Donovan was the whole show in the White Sox victory, holding the Yankees to four hits and contributing a seventh-inning homer. Lefty Bobby Shantz failed in his fifth try for his 10th victory. The triumph for Donovan was his 10th and it followed a one-hit shutout over the Red Sox last Saturday.

Bosox Clinch Early

Bob Porterfield, making only his fourth start of the year, held the Athletics to six hits, including a homer by Lou Skizas, as the Red Sox beat Kansas City for the 14th time in 18 games this season. Porterfield also helped himself to two of Boston's 10 hits and singled in a run in a four-run rally that clinched the game in the second inning.

Ed Fitzgerald's single in the 10th scored Roy Sievers from second base with the run that gave Washington its first victory over Mike Garcia in two years.

Commissioner George Kuvinka of the Mon Valley League has announced the following rescheduled games:

July 30

Van Voorhis at Fayette City

August 1

Van Voorhis at Charleroi
W. Newton at Monessen Ozarks

Russ Kemmerer went all the way for the Senators, giving up eight hits to register his fifth victory. Jim Lemon hit his 15th homer for Washington.

Lanky Connie Johnson of the Orioles limited Detroit to five hits in achieving his eighth victory and third shutout of the season. Baltimore scored all of its runs off Frank Lary, who absorbed his 13th loss against only four victories. Gus Triandos drove in two of Baltimore's runs with a single and a sacrifice fly.

CIO Softballers Wallop Rod-Gun

Manager Jim Cramer used three pitchers in an attempt to keep the score down as Monessen CIO walloped Fairhope Rod and Gun Club, 20-7, in a Tri-Country Soccer League game last night at the Lynnwood field.

Four triples and two doubles were struck by the winners in an 18-hit attack on Rod and Gun pitching which added to 13 bases on balls issued by the over-generous Rod and Gunners spelled out the over-whelming loss.

Jack Kuhn and Bud McCullough paced the winners at bat, both getting three hits, Kuhn's trio of safe blows including a triple and a double. Art Bandini, Trembush and Babe Weightman also had triples while Jack Manown checked in with a double.

Kuhn, Tom Standard and Brickner handled the hurling chores for CIO.

Redlegs Clobber Bucs In Series Finale, 9-1

ST. LOUIS (UP)—It wasn't even close Thursday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates dropped the last game in a three-game series to the Cincinnati Redlegs, 9-1.

Art Fowler, going the distance for the first time this season in his fourth starting assignment, allowed the Pirates only seven hits and chalked up his second victory.

Added to Fowler's pitching were homers by former Pirate Gus Bell and Ed Bailey to give the Redlegs an onslaught of power offensively.

Bailey slammed his 14th round-tripper of the season with one on in the fifth and Bell connected in the eighth with the bases empty.

For Pirate pitcher Ron Kline, it was his 14th defeat of the season and his sixth loss in a row.

The Pirates scored their only runs in the eighth on singles by Billy Virdon, Bill Mazeroski and Hank Foiles.

Cincinnati scored two in the second two in the third, one in the fourth, two in the fifth and two more in the eighth.

Tonight the Pirates are slated to play St. Louis here with Bob Purkey (9-7) pitching against Von McDaniel (4-2).

Two Groups Have Different Solutions to Dairy Problem

(This is the second in a series of three articles reviewing a situation which reportedly threatens to bankrupt many of the state's dairy farmers.)

By ALLEN KLINE

Slowly going broke, troubled dairy farmers in western Pennsylvania are trying to decide which of two organizations will better champion their cause:

The long-established Dairymen's Co-Operative Sales Association (DCSA), or the newly-formed Local Union 733, an AFL-CIO affiliate.

Both the DCSA and union agree that something has to be done soon to keep the dairy farmer from falling into bankruptcy. However they advocate vastly different approaches to the problem.

As a result, DCSA and Local Union 733 are locked in a quiet, but determined, struggle for the right to represent the dairymen.

The DCSA solution to the farmers' plight is not nearly as militant as the union's answer. The cooperative also regards the problem as far more complex than the union.

7,000 DCSA Members

According to Homer Martz, assistant manager, DCSA has 7,000 members. 4,000 of whom sell milk to the Pittsburgh market.

"DCSA is an organization operated by the farmers themselves," said Martz. "Each farmer has a vote in policy matters regardless of the size of his herd."

Martz, who is a familiar voice to radio fans as the KDKA farm expert, will quickly agree that only a comparatively small number of farmers turn out for DCSA meetings to exercise their voting privilege.

The cooperative is presently financed by a nine cent contribution from the farmers on every 100 pounds of milk sold. Of that figure, four cents goes into marketing expenses, two cents into check-testing, two cents into advertising and one cent into an educational program.

"The members, themselves, voted on the nine cent contribution," pointed out Martz.

A farmer may withdraw from DCSA at a stated time each year. Otherwise he must pay a penalty which amounts to $5 per cow.

Outlines Policy

Briefly, here's what DCSA does for the farmer, according to Martz:

"We guarantee a market for his milk, and even more important guarantee payment, providing, of course, the milk meets certain standards. We also try to keep the flow of milk even so as to protect the market for our members. Then, too, we represent the dairyman at hearings of the milk commission, at which time we relentlessly and constantly seek additional benefits for our members."

Martz agrees with the union that the dairy farmer needs additional income merely to break even, but he feels the way to attain it is not as simple as the union contends.

There are two prime factors complicating the situation, according to Martz.

First off, the flow of milk to market at present is uneven, thus causing a fluctuating price. In the spring, there is a great deal of milk; in the fall there is a shortage.

DCSA contends that the importance of this factor can be reduced through education. Improved methods of breeding, if adopted, will enable the farmer to supply milk throughout the year.

"In that manner we will be able to guarantee the dairies an even flow of milk and thus protect the market for our members," said Martz.

The second factor contributing to the farmers' plight is something which has DCSA puzzled.

"It's no secret the dairies can buy milk from as far away as Wisconsin at a cheaper rate than our farmers can produce it," said Martz.

"In the mid-west, production costs are much lower," Martz explained. "In our district capitalization is higher, taxes are higher and labor is higher. In short, our farmers are trapped by increased costs of production."

So what is the DCSA answer to the problem?

Primarily education, according to Martz.

"If we can keep the market supplied with milk during the fall, when milk is normally scarce, then not flood it in the spring, when milk is abundant, it will be possible to maintain a fair price for the farmers," reasoned Martz.

Asked if he felt the farmers were receiving a fair share of the price paid by consumers for milk products Martz replied:

"DCSA is concerned primarily with the problems o fthe farmers, not the dairies. Naturally we are always trying to get better prices for our members."

(In tomorrow's concluding article, the union solution to the farmers' plight will be reviewed.)

More Bicycling Is Urged

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower's youth fitness director today proposed that New York's Fifth Ave. and main streets throughout the nation be restricted to bicycling on week ends.

Shane McCarthy, executive director of the President's Youth Fitness Council, said power steering, power brakes, television and electric golf carts have turned the mid-20th Century in America into "a period of human erosion."

"Inactivity can cause rot," he declared.

But he said by taking to bicycle riding Americans can overcome their "phlegmatic, soft habits."

—Designate secondary roads, drained of most traffic by the new superhighways, as "human highways" for cycling and walking.

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist Church met in the church social rooms on Wednesday evening. Vice President Mrs. George Ventura was in charge.

Mrs. Robert Crookham was the devotional and lesson leader. Her theme was "Strangers Within the Gate". The lesson purpose was to call attention to some of the many places in the world where large colonies of people, different in some respects from their neighbors, form virtual islands in the population.

The hymn, "In Christ There Is No East or West" was read by Mrs. Crookham to open the program. Carol Davenport sang a solo, "Just For Today" with Gladys Adele Dobson accompanying.

Assisting Mrs. Crookham in presenting the program were Frances Lowman, Mrs. Eunice Hudson Clark, a guest of Miss Lowman; Mrs. Kenneth Beazell, and Mrs. Edward Morgan.

The devotions closed with the hymn, "Lead On O God Eternal".

Mrs. Thomas Sims, spiritual life secretary, used the theme "Love Thy Neighbor As Thyself" to explain the worship center. Mrs. Ella Cain continued the study, "Women of the Bible" with Ruth as her subject.

During the social time, Mrs. Clark told of the work in the Long Island Schools, where she and her husband, the Rev. Isaac Wesley Clark, are religious education teachers, and of the work they did as counselors in the Billy Graham meetings in New York City. She was formerly a missionary to Brazil for six years.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. George Ventura, Mrs. Ellen Davenport, Miss Elizabeth Roley, Mrs. John Mateka and Mrs. Ruth Lynn.

Mrs. Ruth Lynn and Miss Eda McCully are spending this week attending a conference at Jumonville, Methodist Summer Center.

Mrs. Earl Cramer, of State St., who has been ill for some time was admitted to Charleroi-Monessen Hospital for treatment on Tuesday evening. Her daughter, Mrs. William Smedley and family, of St. Petersburg Beach, Fla., are visiting with her. The W

The Women's Missionary Society of the Marion Presbyterian Church will meet for the regular July session in the church next Wednesday evening, July 31. There will be no August meeting for the group.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Clark, of Graham St., spent yesterday in Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kimball, daughter, Ocie and son, Bill, have returned after a several day eastern motor trip.

Mr. and Mrs. James McLaughlin, of Roscoe, have gone to Orange City, Fla., where they plan to make their future home.

Mrs. Alden Mills and daughter, Lana, are vacationing in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William Atkinson, of Etna, visited last night with Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hurley, of Broad Ave.

Convicted Man Under Indictment

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A new trial motion for three members of the Teamsters Union, convicted last September under the Hobbs Anti-Racketeering Act, was rejected here Thursday by Federal Judge Wallace S. Gourley.

Ray Nedley, 29, Pittsburgh; Stanley A. Jochim, 28, Gibsonia and Paul Baurhenn, 25, Ingram, were found guilty of beating a St. Louis trucker, who was delivering goods to a Pittsburgh store during a truck strike in August, 1955.

In addition to being convicted on three counts each of violating the anti-racketeering act, Baurhenn was convicted on a conspiracy charge.

In refusing the new trial appeal, Judge Gourley, said the trio resorted "to naked use of force" and "hoodlum tactics."

George R. Moore, the trucker, testified during the trial that he was attacked in Millvale after being ordered by the three men to "get back on the Turnpike" and get out of town.

McKeesport Bus Fares Increased

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Penn Transit Co., McKeesport, will drop a 13¾ cent token and use its straight 15 cent cash fare starting Sunday.

The Public Utility Commission said school fares also would be boosted from seven to 10 cents per zone.

The transit line, serving the McKeesport area, said the fare changes would return about $27,700 more revenue annually needed to absorb wage increases in the face of declining patronage and higher operating costs.

Club Meets at Sylvester Home

A meeting of the Miss and Mrs. Club was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Valerie Sylvester.

Guests attending along with the club members were Norma Jean Alberini, Amelia Razzando and Mrs. Betty Martin.

Cards were played and prizes won by Valerie Sylvester, Miss Alberini, Miss Razzando and Mrs. Betty Martin. The consolation prize was won by Amelia Razzando.

Luncheon was served and plans were made to meet for the next session at the home of Laura Lee McCune.

Playground Will Close on Tuesday

The playground season at North Belle Vernon will close next Tuesday afternoon, when the closing day treat will be given.

The six week program has been under the direction of Jody Catrino and Paige Grant, two college students, who are home on summer vacation. Several special events featured the schedule

Good Fellowship Group Meeting

The members of the Good Fellowship group of the First Methodist Church met in the church social rooms for a dinner session on Monday evening. Mrs. John Kimball was dinner chairman assisted by Mrs. George Boston.

Harry Robinson was the devotional leader, and during the program Mrs. Boston read two poems.

During the business session conducted by Mrs. Kimball, Ruth Lynn was acting secretary in the absence of Harry Molter, who is vacationing.

Plans were discussed for a corn roast to be held in August. The place will be announced.

Lions Club Makes Trip to Cleveland

The annual trip to Cleveland was made by the Belle Vernon Lions Club last Sunday, when the men went to see the double header between the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians.

This trip is made by special train and is the annual treat by the tail twister.

After making the excursion for several years, the club suspended it last year, but resumed it again by popular request.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaber Kinik and sons, Kenny and Bobby, of Green St, have returned home from a camping trip to Black Moshannon.

Highway Signs To Be Erected

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Highways Department said today it will erect "oversize" signs to warn motorists when they are approaching the end of a 60-mile-an-hour speed zone.

The department said the "end 60 mile speed" signs would be white, 4½ by 2½ feet with black lettering.

The 60 mile an hour speeds are permitted in four places on the highways system; on portions of U.S. Route 22 between Harrisburg and Allentown, on the Allentown bypass the Schuylkill Expressway and on the Harrisburg to Baltimore Express in York and Cumberland counties.

Swimming Pools Are Popping Up All Over

By ROBERT SHORTAL

NEW YORK (UP)—"Anyone who can afford a car can afford a swimming pool."

This is a keynote of the sales campaign that has made the swimming pool a familiar sight in America's backyards the past few years.

Sales have been mushrooming and are expected to make a half billion dollar splash on the retail scene in 1957. Some industry leaders look for volume of a billion dollars by the early 1960's.

Americans are buying swimming pools today the same way they buy cars and other big ticket items—on the instalment plan.

Pools being offered for backyard use by some 500 manufacturers range in price from a $3 plastic wading job for kids to a $50,000 or more custom-designed pool sunk in the image of a grand piano or a chihuahua dog.

Industry spokesmen say the average cost of permanent "built-in" pools is around $4,000.

At the end of 1956, according to Swimming Pool Age magazine, there were about 90,000 pools in the U.S. against 2,500 in 1948. More than half the pools have been added in the past two years alone.

The magazine estimated that by the end of 1957 the nation will boast more than 135,000 pools.

Don Pruess, president of International Swimming Pool Corp., a leading manufacturer of pools, said sales this year have been reported in every state of the union.

"So great is the lure of patio beachcoming that swimming pools have become our second fastest growing industry, surpassed only by television," he added.

Home Straddles Michigan-Ohio State Lines

MONROE, Mich. (UP) — Real estate problems? Pity the plight of a couple who built a new home that straddles the Michigan-Ohio state line.

Bill Fleitz a Toledo contractor, didn't know what they were in for when they started to build their $35,000 house last spring.

"The first idea we had that trouble was headed our way was when I tried to have an application approved for electricity," Mrs. Fleitz recalled.

She applied at Erie, Mich., in April and was told she couldn't be served because the house was partly in Ohio.

o "Then the headaches rea started," she said.

In quick order, the couple came face to face with problems involving building permits, getting gas and water, installing a telephone and determining where and how to pay taxes.

Except for the gas and water, the problems eventually were solved after weeks of hectic visits with various company representatives.

Mrs. Fleitz said Ohio refused gas service and no Michigan firm serves the area.

"And we can't get water yet, but that's because of a disagreement between the county and city over which should serve the area," she said. "We expect that to be worked out when we move in about October."

Paper Strike Comes to End

ERIE, Pa. (UP)— A six-week strike of 1,700 production and maintenance workers of the Hammermill Paper Co. ended today following ratification of a new two year contract by members of the United Papermakers Union.

The workers voted 84 to 104 Thursday night to accept an agreement calling for a 12-cent an hour wage increase plus fringe benefits.

The company said full operations at the plant will be resumed by Monday. The strike also had halted a multi million dollar expansion project at the plant. Construction workers refused to cross the strikers' picket lines.

TV Quiz Emcee Has Praise for Top Stars

By JAN MURRAY

NEW YORK (UP) — After 21 years in show business, I've come to one conclusion: Stars, everything considered, are a pretty grand bunch of folks. I'm basing this judgment on the many wonderful ways they've helped me through my career.

I remember how deeply concerned I was when I started my "Dollar A Second" quiz several years ago. It was important to have a good background of laughs and I was worried I wouldn't have much of a studio audience for the first few programs.

One night I was discussing this with Milton Berle, one of my closest friends. "Stop worrying," said Milton. "I've got an idea that will do the trick."

Draws The Crowds

Sure enough, Uncle Miltie was on hand for my next show and right after it ended, he raced on stage and kept the studio audience entertained for 40 minutes. Those viewers told their friends and, by the next show, the studio was jammed. Berle was there again, and he kept coming on the stage for five more weeks — unpaid, just to give a pal a hand.

I remember being booked into a Boston vaudeville house. There was a convention in town and the boys became real rough during my first show. They heckled me, tossed things on the stage and I was miserably low. In fact, the manager decided to fire me right then and there.

Georgie Jessel was in the audience that night and he came backstage just as the manager was giving me the gate. Jessel interrupted and told him to keep me for a week and, if I failed, he, Jessel, would pay my salary.

It sounded pretty good to the manager and he agreed. I remained there 30 weeks and it was one of the most successful stands in Boston's history.

Three of my closest friends today are the Ritz brothers. I met them in an unusual way. It was in Miami, my first big nightclub appearance. Working at a club on the next street were the Ritz boys, packing 'em in. Meanwhile for four straight nights I did my stint before empty tables.

After the fourth night I went to a small restaurant and seated at the next table were the Ritz brothers. I was feeling low and when they asked me why, I told them. The following night after they closed their own act, the three of them roared into my club where I was dying and joined my act. They did this on three successive nights and when word got around, the place was jammed.

That's why I'll always take issue with anybody who says show people are jealous of each other. They're wonderful. I speak from experience.

Grade Christmas Trees, Idea of U. S. Government

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government proposes taking some of that old American let-the-buyer-beware zip out of Christmas tree selling.

The Agriculture Department in an un-Yuletide like mood has suggested it might be a good idea to grade Christmas trees so the purchaser knows what he is getting.

The department said the grades would be based on such qualities as density, taper, balance, freshness and freedom from deformities.

Nothing was said about date of purchase, but presumably all trees would be graded no higher than U.S. number two the day after Christmas.

The department said the standard grades would serve as a pricing guide for both buyers and sellers.

Your Health—

What to Do When Bug Flies into Ear

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

It is not a funny matter when an insect flies into your ear. While it is usually nothing to worry about, immediate action should be taken to get the bug out of the external auditory canal.

Removal is necessary because any foreign body may cause inflammation and discomfort and possibly impair your hearing.

There is one thing you can do to try to get the bug out yourself. Insects are attracted to light. Sometimes they can be encouraged to crawl out if you hold a bright light close to the ear.

If this fails to remove them and the buzzing is extremely annoying, the insect probably can be killed and the buzzing halted by dropping a little olive oil or mineral oil into the ear.

Then the trespassing little culprit can be removed by a doctor.

Generally the doctor will instill alcohol or oil or a volatile anesthetic and then by injecting water he can float the little creature right out.

Irrigating the ear with warm water also is used frequently to wash other foreign objects such as beans and peas from the ear. For pointed bodies, however, a doctor usually has to use instruments.

Insects sometimes make their way into a person's nose as well as the ears. And youngsters are apt to stuff a bean or grain of corn into a nostril while playing.

Usually there is no immediate danger. You can place a few drops of mineral oil or olive oil into the nostril to relieve the irritation and to help prevent swelling.

The patient can blow his nose, but not too vigorously. And whether something is stuffed up the nose or not, never blow it with one nostril held closed.

Consult a doctor as soon as you can. With his instruments he will be able to clear the nose easily and quickly.

The so-called common cold is more frequent among women than among men.

Circle Holds Outdoor Meeting

The World Friendship Circle of Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church held an outdoor meeting on Tuesday evening at the parsonage. Miss Gerladine Monath was the leader, using for her topic, "The Chaplain is There."

The business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Dorothy Zumbro. The Christmas project for the Passavant Hospital Auxiliary Bazaar was discussed at some length.

It was also announced that The United Lutheran Church Women of the Pittsburgh Synod will hold their synodical convention at Thiel College in Greenville on August 27 and 28. Three members of the Circle are planning to attend the convention.

The group will send in enough money to purchase another baby layette to be sent overseas. The meeting was closed with the missionary benediction.

Lunch was served by Peggie Nesbit and Mrs. Zumbro, assisted by Mrs. Barbara Schneidmiller. There were 16 members and 4 guests present.

Next month's meeting will be held on August 22 at the Miller Ranch, with Mrs. Audrey Myers and Mrs. Thelma Medsger as hostesses.

Mass Conversions Fail to Hold, Editor of Religious Organ Says

(Author of this week's column is editor of the Christian Century magazine, an old and respected organ which circulates widely among clergymen of all major Protestant denominations. He raises questions about the lasting benefits of crusading techniques like Billy Graham's and finds that in the past mass conversions have failed to take hold.)

By DR. HAROLD E. FEY

Each Saturday evening during his New York Crusade the nation has seen hundred of televised men and women moving to the front of Madison Square Garden as evangelist Billy Graham has pleaded with them to "accept Christ."

Forty years ago Billy Sunday urged New Yorkers to "hit the sawdust trail," and they came in even larger numbers. But the effects of the Billy Sunday meetings have long ago disappeared, and it seems likely the Billy Graham revival may have a similar transiency. Mass - produced conversions fail to endure the test of time.

On the other hand, the one-by-one conversions which take place through the churches amount to more than three millions each year, renewing a Christian community of nearly 100 million each generation, without fanfare or excitement and with a minimum of loss and disillusionment.

Believes In Conversion

Right off I must make it clear that my skepticism concerning the value of mass evangelism does not mean I am skeptical concerning the importance of religious conversion. Real conversion is not only possible; it takes place every day and under the right circumstances it is greatly to be desired.

Conversion can bring a radical and wholesome change to life. A person who has been consciously alien, despairing, guilty, confused as to his goals and at odds with the universe, with society and with himself, can be changed. He or she can come to know reconciliation with God, with other people, with self. Despair can be transformed to confidence, guilt to forgiveness, the cross purposes of uncertain goals to the integrity of one aim. The personality, hitherto utterly alone, takes on a new character as it becomes part of the church, the living society which hails as its highest designation the title "Body of Christ."

Clearly it is of overwhelming importance that a person who has been at odds with himself and the universe can be so reconciled with God, his fellows and his own soul. This change is conversion. It can usually take place without a wracking emotional upheaval, but it involves the emotions since they are part of the totality of personality. But it can never take place without the presence and help of the church at various stages.

Billy Graham is right in insisting that every person must make his own decision about Christ, must surrender his life to God. But experience has repeatedly shown that the person who "accepts Christ" in such circumstances as those seen in Madison Square Garden is very likely to lose his way.

He may transiently know what it means to be converted, but if he fails to become integrally identified with other Christians in a church, the experience will wither. He needs guidance immediately into an understanding of the good news which runs far deeper than that preached by the mass evangelist, whose sole concern is to present only that portion of the gospel which bears on "decisions for Christ."

The new Christian needs more help than ordinarily he knows to "grow in grace." He is fortunate if he is led into the experience of conversion by the pastor or members of a church whose individual counsel and prayers guide each step.

American Window Glass Co. Pulls Out of the Red

PITTSBURGH (UP)—American Window Glass Co. pulled out of the red to show a profit in the second quarter of the year, but operations for the first six months of 1957 still were at a loss, the company reported today.

Net profit for the three months ended June 30 was $27,732 on sales of $3,900,430, compared to a first quarter loss of $90,895, after giving effect to a tax loss carryback, on sales of $3,747,777.

Results for the first six months of 1957 showed a loss of $63,163. In the same period of 1956, the company netted a profit of $691,210, equivalent to $1.42 per common share, after preferred dividends.

Otto G. Schwenk, president of the firm, said May and June bookings ran 20 per cent above the average of the first four months of 1957 with the uptrend continuing in July.

Schwenk said there is an urgent need for an early price increase on sheet glass products. Raw materials costs have risen 15 per cent, freight 13 per cent, and labor costs 14 per cent since 1955, he said.

The company, he said, must assume, in addition, the further burden of automatic wage and cost-of-living increases which take effect this year.

Many Killed as House Collapses On Bridal Party

CAIRO (UP) — A rickety two-story building collapsed on 200 wedding guests clapping and stamping out a beat for a belly dancer today killing scores of men women and children.

Police said 6 bodies had been recovered from the wreckage and the death toll may go higher.

At least 4 of the known dead were children between the ages of one and 14 yeads of age.

One police official said "as many as 77 may have been killed." Another 15 persons were reported in serious condition at hospitals.

The bride, 19-year-old Fatma El Shimy, stood by holding the hand of her husband, Mansour Abdel Hamid, when disaster struck shortly before 12. The merriment had reached its peak with the native music and belly dancing. The guests, including children, clapped and stamped in joy.

The bride, wearing her white wedding dress, was found in the debris. The bridegroom escaped with injuries.

TV Channel 4 Is Granted to McKeesport Firm

WASHINGTON (UP)—TV channel 4 was granted to Television City Inc., McKeesport, Thursday by the Federal Communications Commission.

The commission acted after other applicants withdrew last Tuesday, leaving a clear field for Television City, which has substantial holdings in Pittsburgh radio station KQV.

Under agreement among the contestants, Television City will share 50-50 ownership with WCAE Inc., owned by the Hearst Publishing Co., which publishes the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The compromise calls for Television City to pay $50,000 to each of the three other applicants for expenses incurred in their bids for the channel.

The other contestants were Malta Enterprises, which operates WLOA at Braddock; Irwin Community Television Co., of Irwin, which operates WEDO at McKeesport, and Wespen Television Inc., Irwin, which has no broadcasting outlet.
